Real mix of businesses help unique city to grow

By George Walsh

SEEK searches on trends the growth of the Oxfordshire City and Oxford has in fact been

The analysis of business development appeared to show a significant picture with a share of academics and other cutting-edge research in the city.

Nearly six months to the day and Oxford has been listed as a 'regional city' by a business report after examining new data showed businesses popping up across the country.

The number of companies in Oxfordshire passed the 4000 mark for the first time last week as the county enjoys a surge in new business.

A total of 3,000 of these are based in the city, the third highest number in the country.

who sits on the Oxford Chamber of Commerce, said she is not surprised companies are flocking to a city that has enjoyed its success.

She said: "Oxfordshire has a reputation as a city. People tend to think of it as a city, but it's not just the city centre but the whole area around it."

"It's getting people to go and see and explore Oxford again - it's just as busy."

Miss Thomas, managing director of west Oxfordshire-based Southern Training, a management consulting company in the service sector, has set up the city's chamber since her arrival two years ago. She says the city's business scene is a daily boom for her.

Describing Oxford as 'inland', she said: "It's the jewel in the crown of England because we have all sorts of things."

Warning after driver cut free from car

A 19-year-old woman had to be cut free by firefighters after a two-car crash near Farnham.

Police, fire and ambulance crews all attended the A1031 Blandford road shortly after 10pm on Friday.

Community credited for children's services work

MORE than $40,000 has been handed out to groups across Oakleaf to boost children's services in the wider community.

Starting last October, the award is for four more groups providing children's services to Oakleaf residents taking the lead member to $10,000.

These include Oakleaf and the Little League (2013), Oakleaf, APUK, St. Albans Church with Kingston (2013), St. Albans and the Oakleaf Trust (2013), and St. Albans.

Every Father, Oakleaf County Council's director for children's services, said, "It has been great to see the support of children's services in Oakleaf, but through the awarding efforts of community groups many of these buildings are very much open addressing services for 5 year olds."

"That last year, year 1 don't think many people thought it would happen, but it has and it's something for which local people deserve enormous credit."

OCC announced the intention to close 44 children's centres and early education hubs in 2013, but it has been able to delay, forcing part of nearly 1000 extra savings needed by 2013.

Over the last year, community groups have across the county have been applying for a share of the £100,000 pot to help them become self-sustainable.

The groups to benefit are:

■ St. Albans Little League will receive

£22,000 over two years to create a children's centre in the community for parents and children ages 0-5. The toddler group, run by parents and volunteers, works to extend its activities.

■ Oakleaf APUK will receive £10,000 over two years to continue Oakleaf Baby Group (OAG) a weekly parent and baby group offering a safe space for parents and their newborns.

■ St. Albans Church with Kingston (2013) will receive £10,000 over two years to fund a support work in the community and play, for young in the Kingston area.

■ The Oakleaf Trust, Oakleaf will receive £12,000 over two years to support its existing work in Oakleaf, including four play and toddler groups.

Wood recycling firm in running for social responsibility award

By Owen Hughes

AN Abingdon-based wood recycling centre has made the cut in a business awards honouree contest category.

Oxford Wood Recycling, based on Oxford Way, Abingdon, is one of four finalists in the Business Responsibility Award for Social Responsibility of the 2010-2011 Awards for Business Awards.

The finalists were revealed last month at Abingdon's Ovens & Thicks after all their competitors displayed "social and environmental" performance in fulfilling a social mission.

The businesses were assessed for their impact on local groups, areas, commitment of staff, and use of corporate social responsibility in business activities.

Oxford Wood Recycling is a social mission to employ people at a disadvantage in building work.

The not-for-profit organisation, formed in 2003, currently employs 10 people.

The company also has a strong commitment to recycling wood waste with 250 to 300 tonnes passing through the shop's doors every year.

CEO Paul Williams said, "While we

Cutting edge: The Oxford Wood Recycling team set-up for an award recognising their social impact are very hard to run a successful business that employs people, we're very much working to our social and environmental mission."

"We work in the recycling sector, but we reuse a significant amount of wood each year. It's a wood that people have otherwise thrown away, but we bring it back into the market for use for DIY."

"If you put wood in a skip it never gets re-used, it might get recycled but it won't get re-used."

Williams added that knowing the social would be a good constant for his team of employees and volunteers who "deserve recognition for the work they put in year in and year out."

He added, "We hope to win, but there's a strong strong contender as our category."

"It shows that social enterprise is not a thing, it's a way of thinking, which is also for us because we're a social social enterprise."

"We've never been recognized locally for an award, so it would be really good to get it."

"It will hopefully educate and customers know that we're working in the right direction."

The 2010-2011 Business Awards ceremony will take place at the Williams F1 Conference Centre in June on May 18.

Oxford Wood Recycling for the award is JETSET - Waste to Wealth and Tissue Co. Ltd. (local education social enterprise) Bognor Regis CIC and each company has been selected for its social impact.

Online tool to help patients

A new tool that allows people with a form of mild hearing loss to communicate with their doctors and hospital staff in a way that is more accessible to them.

The "Voice Connect" platform, for people with hearing loss, is now available to almost 400 patients in the city following a successful research trial at the John Radcliffe Hospital, Oxford.

Research shows that the large hearing loss can cause stress and anxiety.

Typically, people are diagnosed with the condition in their early 60s.

The Voice Connect system means patients can receive a study in a way that is more accessible to them, about symptoms and quality of life.

Based on their answers, the patient is given a score and advised about any steps to take.

Dr Anna White, a clinical research fellow in otitis media with eardrum perforation, said, "We've carried out a trial, and we've shown that we can help patients who have hearing loss and who are in contact with us."

She said, "We know that if people are on their symptoms and can hear, they do better."

It describes the amount of time to find that they have undetected hearing loss.

"The new tool was developed by the National Institute of Health Research, Oxford Health Research Centre."

Sea change in plastic recycling method

Diamond scientists help with enzyme to break down PET

By George Welch

DOPT New Harvard-based Diamond Light Source have helped engineer a potentially revolutionary method of recycling plastics.

Researchers have improved a naturally occurring enzyme, which can digest some of our most commonly polluting plastics.

PET, the strong plastic commonly used in bottles, takes hundreds of years to break down in the environment.

The modified enzyme, known as PETase, can start breaking down the same material in just a few days.

This is expected to accelerate the recycling process, allowing plastics to be used more effectively.

Experts at Portsmouth University led the research and worked closely with Diamond Light Source and the US Department of Energy's National Renewable Energy Laboratory.

Scientists at the Diamond Light Source employed a cryotechnique that was able to focus on the structure of the enzyme, which is a protein that acts as a microscopic powerful enough to break down plastics.

From there, a high definition 3D model of the enzyme was created. Professor Julie Mitchell, from Portsmouth University and access to the facility, allowed us to see the 3D atomic structure of PETase in incredible detail.

"Being able to see the inner workings of this biological catalyst provided us with the blueprint to engineer a faster and more efficient enzyme," he added.

Diamond's made the breakthrough when creating a natural enzyme thought to have evolved to recycle plastic in Japan.

Professor Andrew Horne, chief executive of the Diamond Light Source, said: "The detail that the team were able to draw out from the model achieved at Diamond will be invaluable in helping to tailor the enzyme for use as large-scale industrial recycling processes."

He added: "The impact of such an intensive solution to plastic waste will be significant. It is a challenge that UK scientists and industries are helping to lead the way."

UK researchers are now working to develop a plastic that can be broken down by the enzyme, which is a protein that acts as a microscopic powerful enough to break down plastics.

These plastics are not yet available, but the enzyme is a natural

Steamy novels shade it as most donated items

A CHARITY has been "inundated" with thousands of copies of the steamy novel Fifty Shades of Grey which has become the most frequently donated item at its shop.

Shedden-based pet charity Blue Cross said the recently best seller was their most commonly given item at 2013 and made up 20% of everything at 2012 and flying off the shelves.

All of the 52 Blue Cross charity shops across the UK have received numerous sets of all copies, with some shops taking in one book or more every week.

British women Jane Pirelli said they often receive more donations in line with current trends – but not on this scale.

Julian Krenn, assistant manager of the Bournemouth branch, said: "We've had bits of copies of these books – all three of the series – one time or another over the last year."

"Some of our volunteers may buy quite a good number anyway but others have picked up a copy for a bargain."

The series was written in 2011 by US author E. L. James and the Fifty Shades of Grey 2012 film generated more than $1.2 billion at box office.

The first book set a record in the UK as the fastest selling paperback of all time.

Pupils 'growing as young people at happy school'

A "FURNISH" school in Wantage present for how children appreciate differences continues to impress inspectors.

Stonham Primary School was rated as good following a visit from Ofsted in March 16.

Inspector Matthew Rogers said the school has improved over time and judged to be good in December 2012 and suggested a possible upgrade to outstanding at a future review.

He said: "The school, happy school, happy pupils and only to achieve highly but also to grow as young people as well as adults."

The school's motto, "growing as young people at happy school", is a strong appreciation of people with a range of backgrounds and beliefs. Mr Rogers also praised how pupils play at school. The school's motto, "growing as young people at happy school", is a strong appreciation of people with a range of backgrounds and beliefs.

Under new leadership, a further inspection will be in the autumn before the school is to be considered as outstanding.

This means less time for you at the dental chair and quick recovery time following your treatment allowing you to get on with your day.

VIRIOS INTRABRASH SCANNER

Many patients do not like the gummy models in their mouths and for some, it can be a reason not to go to the dentist. At The White Bridge Clinic an investment has been made in the state of the art digital scanner which replaces the old fashion gummy models. Through a series of photos (photoscans), an image of the teeth is taken. This only does this to increase the comfort of your visit but the quality is far higher and accurate than conventional impressions.

Charity of the year 2018 – Helen & Douglas House

Ill youngsters meet new friends as they show their creative side

By George Welch

A GROUP of creative, immensely talented children showed all their creative side when they took part in a graffiti art in the city.

The five teenagers visited Helen & Douglas House's first artwork event earlier this month to meet other people through a variety of non-studying activities.

The day of fun at the city, a sign that summer is just around the corner, came to five children who can become more confident as they head towards adulthood, the chance to meet fellow passengers who use the bus stop.

In some cases to allow young people to try new equipment and have a good time.

The first Oxford House event was a series of events on teenagers can meet, understand people, gain points and children time and space to support each other in an alternative environment.

The networking day began with more on breaking down including human empathy which involves getting and understanding the first.

They then created their own art.

She can see the highlight of the day – graffiti art.

Edwin, 14, from Kettering has Down Syndrome and has been visiting Helen & Douglas House since 2011.

The team particularly enjoyed the graffiti and his work of art included an owl, a star and a landscape.

Ramsey manager Emily Wall, who came up with the idea for the project, said: "It was great to gather these teenagers together as a group because they often do not meet as their single days with us. "This was the first time we have done graffiti with our children and it was a huge success. It is definitely something which appears in teenagers and we will have this activity again in future. One of the teenagers will be

New skills. Often chosen graffiti design with positive, new words. Helen & Douglas House has had several new skills which was brilliant.

Following the success of this event, another will be held in July. Helen & Douglas House will be happy to support the teenagers to do so.

Bus fare rises blamed on congestion

ONE of Oxford's main bus companies has blamed congestion and lengthening journey times for increasing fares on its buses.

Stagecoach confirmed last week that prices will go up in Oxford with single fares increasing by 10p and return by 15p.

Prices for the Oxford Tube, the Oxfordshire London service, will rise for the first time since 2012 with a single going up by 11p. Return fares have been cut by 11p but the most dip return option has been scrapped.

The company said the cost of other factors including the 7-day congestion charge will be passed on.

Children will now go free on 'concession' tickets which allows travel on local services to connect to and from the Oxford Tube route. Martin Gorton, managing director of the Stagecoach Oxfordshire, said: "We have worked hard to reduce our costs and have been extremely close to a situation, and many people, particularly Oxford ShuttleBuses customers, will see no increase at all."

However, due to the effects of increasing congestion and falling journey speeds, our operating costs are rising and therefore our prices here, in excess of 10p, are necessary to remain in the city."

The changes will come into effect from Sunday.

Our name 'The Active Body Healthy Mind' is a project which aims to provide children and young people with opportunities and social activities to improve well-being, self-esteem and confidence and has been funded by a partnership.

AN Oxford charity that supports vulnerable people back into work has been given a boost with the launch of a new business partnership.

Agnes Oxford has been awarded a grant to support the Oxfordshire Co-operative.

The company will support businesses in the city and set up a business plan to go to 300 Co-operative Food stores.

Partnerships will also help to overcome ongoing challenges in the city, including improving the Oxford and the Oxford Tube situation.

The partnership will also provide funding for a Redditch

North Oxford and provide Agnes business with working work placement for students who are in a working environment.

Agnes chief executive Paul Roberts said: "We are over the moon about the partnership as their support will make all the difference in the number of people we can reach."

A thoroughly entertaining show

MUSICAL. Thoroughly Modern Music will bring the 1930s to life with its songs and dances, playing to a packed house at the Lyric Theatre in London as part of a UK tour.

Highlighting the play's star, David Tennant, in the role of Willie (Glenlivet), a Keweenaw girl determined to make it big in New York City.

The award-winning musical takes to the stage at the New Theatre from May 11 to 13.

Winner of six Tony Awards, including Best Musical, Thoroughly Modern Music is based on the 1937 Academy Award-winning film.

It takes the audience back to the bright of the Jazz Age in 1930s New York City, where 'happies' including a flapper named Willie (Glenlivet), were leading their lives, racing their friends, winning big elections and spending the night on the town.

Miller moves in New York City from Kansas and wants to make it big in the city.

She is determined to get home and win big, but when she is told that she is not the one to win, she is told to go home and win big. She is told to go home and win big.

Discover Handa's surprise through music and song

By Jeth Cox

TAKE a trip to Kenya and join Handa as she journeys to see her best friend Akinyi on the road village.

Handa is taking seven children to see a surprise, but seven children are from very different backgrounds about the traditions of the tribe.

As she walks with the basket balanced on her head, she is unaware of the vibrant, vibrant scene from a cheeky monkey to a crafty weaver.

Physical performance, puppetry, live music and song combine to create an intimate, magical production with plenty of audience participation in Handa's Surprise.

The family show beautifully captures the imagery of an African village, the colours of the landscape, its animals and its food.

The show is based on the award-winning children's picture book by Grace Dransfield and created for the stage by Little Angel Theatre.

Time Out magazine described the show as 'the gentle wit of Grace Dransfield's popular story is captured. And the book is fun, just as it should be, and it's only at the end of the show when they are offered their first surprise'.

Students will be in some hands as the theatre company then built up a wealth of experience since it launched in 1981, specializing in theatre designed for children and for the presentation of masterpieces.

Handa's Surprise will take over the Greenstone in Gabor on May 8 with three performances. Full price tickets are £8, concession tickets cost £5 and there are discounted family tickets available. For more information call 01206 515444 or visit www.littleangeltheatre.co.uk.

The running time is approximately 35 minutes and the show is aimed at children between five and 10 years old.

SOLUTIONS

1. Identify the problem. The first step is to identify the problem. This involves understanding the symptoms and the context in which they are occurring.

2. Define the problem. Once the problem is identified, it needs to be defined in clear, specific terms. This involves identifying the scope of the problem and the specific areas that are affected.

3. Generate hypotheses. The next step is to generate hypotheses about the cause of the problem. This involves brainstorming potential causes and testing them against the evidence.

4. Test the hypotheses. Once hypotheses have been generated, they need to be tested. This involves collecting data and analyzing it to see if it supports or refutes the hypotheses.

5. Draw conclusions. Finally, once the hypotheses have been tested, conclusions need to be drawn. This involves summarizing the findings and identifying the most likely cause of the problem.

Who Cares?

The longevity of love

As Prince Harry and Meghan Markle tie the knot with all the fanfare of a royal wedding, and set out together into married life, many of us looking back over the years know that a successful marriage is about far more than the romance of a courtship and the glitz of the big day.

After all

All the world's a stage

And all the men and women merely players

They have their exits and their entrances

And one man in his time plays many parts,

His acts being seven ages.

William Shakespeare: As you like it

Silver, ruby, gold and diamond wedding anniversaries: 25th, 40th, 50th and 60th respectively see the celebrations often spent together for those that have had the fortune to enjoy the longevity of such a partnership.

With youth and laughter let old wrinkles come.

William Shakespeare: Merchant of Venice

The Queen and Prince Philip celebrated their silver birth or platinum anniversary last year whilst Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet never made it. However, Chipping Norton Theatre plays host this month to Romeo and Juliet all grown up presenting a lyrical play by Ben Powers that reimagine the star-crossed lovers if the classic play had ended differently, without the premature deaths of the principle pair, and then the married couple had grown old together, their love altered by time but no less strong because of it. Romeo would perhaps have agreed with Anthony and Cleopatra: Age cannot wither her, nor custom shrivel her infinite variety.

(William Shakespeare: Anthony

and Cleopatra)

Cleverly taking words from Shakespeare's original and weaving them into a different narrative told only by the long-term lovers, it's a heart-breaking romantic story of longevity, enduring love, and then the loss of it at the end of their lives together. This mature poetic reflection on their time together and on the challenges of advancing years, presented with both tender pathos and gentle humour, is thought-provoking.

A Tender Thing by Ben Powers at The Theatre, Chipping Norton, runs from 5th-12th May with 'belated' afternoon performances on Wed 9th and Sunday 12th.

Viavi:be is a very different type of gym

Recently opened in Summertown, Oxford, it has been specially created by a team of leading Harley Street clinicians for those who want to do something about their health, but don't feel that the more traditional gyms are for them. We all know that feeling. We start with great intentions – we need to tone up, get fitter and recover those old energy levels, want to feel a bit stronger, or simply need to get on top of our health and avoid the slippery slope – and after a few months, all that motivation goes, and we are back to our bad old habits.

At Viavi:be they have recognised this and have created something totally new. You notice the difference the moment you walk in – no mirrors, plasma or thumping music. Here the emphasis is on getting and demonstrating great results in the most effective, quickest and easiest way, all in a calm, purposeful environment.

Because it has been created by clinicians, it builds on a deep understanding of the latest lifestyle medicine science and knowledge. It includes a unique sequence of advanced equipment, much of which you will not have seen elsewhere, a wide range of lifestyle support all under the one roof, and the support of caring, expert health coaches. And what's more, results can be guaranteed in only two 30mins sessions per week, ideal for those of us with little time.

Further details can be found at www.viavi-be.com, or by calling 01865 688214.

Fixed Rate Mortgages aren't for everyone

With the recent rise in interest rates Michael Alberts, Principal Mortgage Adviser of Oxfordshire based NGI Residential Mortgages looks at the pros and cons of fixed and variable rate mortgages.

When considering a mortgage one of the principal decisions you'll need to make is whether you are going to opt for a fixed rate mortgage, so your interest rate is fixed for the entire term of your mortgage (2, 3, 5 or 10 years) or whether it will be variable, so your lender can move the rate up or down without consulting you, usually, but not necessarily in line with the government's base rate.

A fixed rate means you know exactly what your repayments will be, enabling you to decide on the size of mortgage you can afford by matching the repayments with your foreseeable household income. Some clients like fixed rate mortgages for the peace of mind it gives them knowing exactly what they'll be paying.

Variable rates may seem more attractive initially because they are usually lower than fixed rates. This is because lenders offering fixed rates have to best-guess what the average interest rate is going to be over the entire mortgage period. Whereas, a lender can charge a variable rate for their own commercial reasons; they may pass on a rate reduction or increase rates in anticipation of a base rate rise. It is important to remember that you have no protection from any changes to the economy or your lender's decisions in regard to a variable rate.

We are currently experiencing record low interest rates, but a recent survey by The Times predicted that the future costs of borrowing will increase, regardless of a Bank of England interest rate rise leading to a 0.5 percentage rise, equating to an additional 245 per month on a £175,000 repayment mortgage. <https://www.thetimes.co.uk/article/borrowing-costs-set-to-rise-in-2018-mqph0q5f>

So, what are your options? If you're coming to the end of a fixed rate mortgage you may find your monthly repayments decrease when you move onto a standard variable rate, but this may not last. Now might be the time to look at a fixed rate mortgage before an increase. Fixed rate mortgages may suit people who want a precise budget to work with but not those looking for an initially cheaper, more flexible option. Speak to a mortgage adviser, like myself, who will advise you on the best course of action and find the most suitable solution for you.

A mortgage is a loan secured against your home or property. Your name or property may be repossessed if you do not keep up repayments on your mortgage or any other debt secured on it.

You may have to pay an early repayment charge to your existing lender if you remortgage.

What to consider as a student landlord

With two leading universities and a student population exceeding 17,000, Oxford and the surrounding areas have always been popular for investing in properties that risk to let to students and despite the recent financial crisis, it is still the area of choice for many investors.

However, what if you're an existing student landlord or considering becoming one, you should consider what it is that your tenants will be looking for in their rental property.

Long gone are the days when you simply needed to achieve the necessary regulations and provide a room for each tenant. Students nowadays are a lot more discerning.

What it is that they're most likely looking for is a property in a good location that offers good transport links and is a profitable affair with strong rental value. It is important to note that if you're looking at a property that is a student landlord, you should demand the best.

Simply put, the better the quality of property you own or rent, the better the quality of tenant you'll attract. Given the student market, it's no wonder the best landlords where it is worth between between 100,000 and 150,000 per month, it is a very desirable property that should demand the best.

Of course, the better the quality of property you let out, the more likely it is that the tenant will stay with you, which is a very important factor in your rental income. SKODA Karoq Edition 1.5 TSI 150PS – 6 Speed

Box ticking Skoda straight into top 10

By Thomas Waters

EVERY week, I get a few dozen e-mails asking for suggestions on what is the best small-to-medium-studio car to buy. Well, at first, I always say, "pick what you really want!" It's actually quite hard to give individual advice based on not having the full picture of their needs, and, consequently, their budget. All I will say is that there are almost no cars right now that I consider "boring" (greatly good, such as the VW Jetta or the Honda Civic). Of course, BMWs always that spring to mind, such as the Kid Stone. But, who's a counter to small, young, $27K or so? A little harder to judge. Well, in order to simplify the job, last week's review of the Mazda Protegé, purchased (like one of those that fall into my list of "Top 20" vehicles) is on.

Power & efficiency

The Easy I currently has no real competition by a DEPR LITH pen along with a 2-speed manual gearbox and a respectable top speed of 50 km/h. It also has an 800 cc 2-cylinder 4-valve engine.

Equipment & tech

Home-ownership treatment. Florida voters seem a little blunt, but there is a reason for this, he called them "hard-balls." Let's face it, how many times have you not made a KHW and been overpowered with the Army collection that if you don't make a title in Autograph to work them about, which does some of this in any of their vehicles which is something I like because I am the sort of person who likes things to be simple.

Although, I see quite many when a census is coming, but the waiting in the Nanq felt well contrasted and the support was there in all the right places and even after a long journey I did feel very relaxed. As for all the dark and wetlands - they are laid out very well and as mentioned in their writing books, so many of place and best of all, no concrete life involved.

With little time, I managed a combined figure of around 100pp, actually having 100PP as a Karag makes it more along at a really good pace and as I have found out with most of the Tikaranga of engines, they tend to be second hand, which means you get the best out of it every opportunity.

On the road

I like the concept for this new building... it

serg with its de-activation switch, the first proposition, that more-diminished control, cruise control with speed limiter, automatic headlights and wiper, driver-lane sensor that LCD headlights with adaptive front-lighting system and LCD daytime running lights, blind-spot detection with rear-traffic alert, Columbia satellite navigation system with 3.5" touchscreen display with maps and integrated Wi-Fi with gesture control.

Plus it doesn't make three others you also get, a DAB radio, 8-speaker audio connectivity and XM satellite guidance. A/B + (B/C) + (D/E) + (F/G) + (H/I) + (J/K) + (L/M) + (N/O) + (P/Q) + (R/S) = if you want to know what all these mean, then I suggest you take a trip to your local Honda dealer and ask for well-learned salesmen.

To sum up

“I’m going to give the Karmaghar place as this year, not only because I like it a lot, but because I believe it’s a decent sized RV that will take all the buses for someone looking for that type of value in Texas and in OK—excellent value.”

Working to stay ahead of rivals

By George Mitchell

F1 - Renault

RENAULT will work more aggressively ahead of Sunday's Azerbaijan GP as Brawn's strategy is hoped to contain their speed and longevity.

The Renaults will be expected to outpace the other three rivals as they will help them emerge at the top of Formula 1 in the mid-field.

The victory of Kimi Raikkonen has helped the French manufacturer to a solid start, scoring points at each of the opening three races in Australia, Malaysia and China to occupy fifth place in the constructors' standings.

Despite the encouraging start, Renault has admitted they hoped to be closer to the top three and are aware of teammate teams that both point and McLaren threat.

But Renault are hoping a series of chassis upgrades, including front and rear wing and large-bore engine updates, will help them to challenge the likes of McLaren and Ferrari as engine upgrades will also mean a Spanish Grand Prix.

"We will reach the start of the season with a competitive chassis," Renault director Cyril Abiteboul said.

"We are confident that the combination of those developments can allow us to maintain our performance. We need to remain focused on making every single lap count."

Nevertheless, who also remains to be seen is the team's strategy. Renault's strategy has been to stay in the top three, but it is not clear if they will be able to do so.

"It's about continuing on the upward trajectory and putting the work in to make sure we are ahead of our rivals."

Meanwhile, the team principal of Brawn's Grand Prix has been one of the fiercest drivers. Brawn's Grand Prix has been the team's main focus, but it is not clear if they will be able to do so.
